WATTERSON

Enlightens Kentucky's Dead Governor.

"His Death Unites the Democrats of the United States."

There have been so much of passion, and so little of reason, dominating the politics of Kentucky the last few years, that, in the presence of the awful tragedy before which all true Kentuckians of all parties and all factions stand reverent and uncovered, it is hard to speak without misrepresentation, impossible to speak without misrepresentation. Yet in the presence of these troubles that have come upon us almost unawares, we venture to ask a parley with our bitterest enemy; and before he lifts his hand to strike us down, to entreat him to pause just for a moment; and then if he wants to strike, let him strike and let the strike be mortal. It is of Wm. Goebel that we wish to speak.

He lies dead at Frankfort. He can never again speak for himself. We take leave to speak not for him, but in his behalf; in the defense of the good name which he wished to leave behind him, now clear only to the bearded ones of his own family, though honored by his political associates; for he lived a lonely, isolated life, was cheek-by-jowl with no one; a simple student who aspired to be a leader and a statesman. He was ambitious. The eulogist of Caesar called it a grievous fault, and grievously Wm. Goebel answered it. But here are kindly and dispassionate. He wished to do the state some service. He thought the best way to attain this end was to represent the interests of the great body of the people against the growing aggressions of the chartered companies. It cost him his life. He has paid the debt. He is gone.

But, being a student, sustained by the rectitude of his convictions along with the knowledge of his researches, he set himself against the aggressions of the chartered companies like a statesman, not like an empirist. He did not seek whimsically or corruptly to oppose them; but, rather, to moderate their excesses, to restrain them within the bounds of their chartered rights. To accomplish such a task so needful and difficult required not merely legal learning and acumen, but personal courage of the first order; because in the capitals of all our states, there are lobbies, which, when the artifices of corruption fall, know how to handle the appliances of intimidation; in the other States the machinery is blacklisted; in the newer, the menace of personal danger. Mr. Goebel feared none of these. He went his way, disdaining them. He did his work in their despite. Because of this he became a leader, and the one leader in Kentucky whom corruption and corruptionists seriously feared. They could not buy him; and they could not bully him. They had to cause him to be killed; and like the blowing up of the Maine in Havana harbor, his death will be the signal for such just retribution to them as came to Spain. It throws a flash upon the whole subject of the relation of the public corporations to the State and to the people. It is a signal to honest and patriotic men of all parties to unite against the growing danger of monopoly.

If William Goebel had survived these tragical times nothing could have stood in the way of his going to the head of the people's column for physical and moral emancipation from the brute power of money. His death unites the Democrats of the United States. All of us, from Maine to Texas, from New York to California, will dip our handkerchiefs in his blood, swear to fight the fight out on that line if it takes the whole of the coming century. That is all that we can do for him now; but, standing over the grave of this brave and pure young spirit—magnified beyond recall, hounded to that grave by men who knew better—this we can pledge ourselves to do. The grief of Goebel's taking off is domestic. The issue is national.

William Goebel was not a man to attract the public. He was not a man to convulse an audience or to set the table in a roar. But his brothers and sisters loved him; and he was so good a son that, after his mother's death, he kept her membership of her church alive and paid for her pew, as if she herself had still been living. He had the misfortune to be born of poor German parentage. Before he was five and twenty, he was the law partner of the late Gov. Stephenson, the very Ultima Thule of the particularism of Virginia and Kentucky; who, dying, left him his great estate; and, who knew Mr. Goebel as few men knew him, pays this feeling tribute to the dead statesman:

"Permit me to say a few plain, blunt words in memory of my old friend, Hon. William Goebel. I knew Mr. Goebel intimately for many years, first as a colleague in the Kentucky Senate, working in the main for mutual objects and actuated by the same political sentiments and motives. In the Constitutional Convention we were again associated together intimately, both personally and as to common objects to be secured as desirable and necessary for the welfare and protection of the people in the organic law. Since then we have differed politically on some of the great issues, and in the last few years I have seldom met him. He was my friend and I knew him well. The words that I now speak of Mr. Goebel are not to be considered as the fulsome phrases of praise and eulogy given a man when he is dead, but my honest and accurate analysis of his personal character and public purposes. I am very far from him utterly reliable and truthful, one of the very few men that I have known in public life who was absolutely undaunted in carrying out those measures that he thought necessary for the welfare and protection of the great mass of the common people. No bribe of any sort, honor or political preference, danger or fear of personal consequences could abate one jot or tittle of that capacity, energy of action that he had consecrated to the service of the people.

By nature a radical and eminently fitted to be a great tribune of the people, he, in the fierce fight for the protection of the plain people against the colossal corporate power, might have, from a conservative standpoint, committed some mistakes or errors, but this did not come from any abating of the conscience or the weakening of the moral force, but from the fierceness and unscrupulousness of the fight made upon him and from his earnest and indomitable desire that the people, whose cause he ardently believed, be represented, should prevail.

"A great many of us think that his greatest political mistake was the passage of his election bill. But to Mr. Goebel, who had consecrated his abilities and energies to the fight in behalf of the protection of the plain people against the encroachments of the corporate power, such a bill seemed absolutely necessary to prevent the debauching of the elections by the money and influence of the said power. He felt, however mistaken he may have been, that it was a bulwark in defense of the rights of the people. This fight of his to restrain the corporate power within what he thought due limits was no new fight with him, assumed for demagogic purposes, but commenced with the first day of his official life and continued until the hour of his death.

"I shall attempt to estimate or analyze of his intellectual abilities for by his public acts and speeches such estimate can be made by the world. Suffice it to say that they were of a very high order. But amidst the mountains of abuse and contumely that were heaped upon his personal and moral character, and this in a greater degree than ever before known, on account of the strong, selfish interest behind it, I felt it my duty, being one of the few who really knew him (and at the best there are very few who so know any man) to give my most candid evidence in behalf of his moral purpose and high and lofty integrity.

TRIBUTE

BY HON. CASSIUS M. CLAY.

Estimate of William Goebel's Character by One Who Did Not Agree With Him.

Hon. C. M. Clay, Jr., of Paris, who was President of the Kentucky Constitutional Convention when Senator Goebel was a member of that body and who served with him in the State Senate, and who knew Mr. Goebel as few men knew him, pays this feeling tribute to the dead statesman:

"Permit me to say a few plain, blunt words in memory of my old friend, Hon. William Goebel. I knew Mr. Goebel intimately for many years, first as a colleague in the Kentucky Senate, working in the main for mutual objects and actuated by the same political sentiments and motives. In the Constitutional Convention we were again associated together intimately, both personally and as to common objects to be secured as desirable and necessary for the welfare and protection of the people in the organic law. By nature a radical and eminently fitted to be a great tribune of the people, he, in the fierce fight for the protection of the plain people against the colossal corporate power, might have, from a conservative standpoint, committed some mistakes or errors, but this did not come from any abating of the conscience or the weakening of the moral force, but from the fierceness and unscrupulousness of the fight made upon him and from his earnest and indomitable desire that the people, whose cause he ardently believed, be represented, should prevail.

"A great many of us think that his greatest political mistake was the passage of his election bill. But to Mr. Goebel, who had consecrated his abilities and energies to the fight in behalf of the protection of the plain people against the encroachments of the corporate power, such a bill seemed absolutely necessary to prevent the debauching of the elections by the money and influence of the said power. He felt, however mistaken he may have been, that it was a bulwark in defense of the rights of the people. This fight of his to restrain the corporate power within what he thought due limits was no new fight with him, assumed for demagogic purposes, but commenced with the first day of his official life and continued until the hour of his death.

"I shall attempt to estimate or analyze of his intellectual abilities for by his public acts and speeches such estimate can be made by the world. Suffice it to say that they were of a very high order. But amidst the mountains of abuse and contumely that were heaped upon his personal and moral character, and this in a greater degree than ever before known, on account of the strong, selfish interest behind it, I felt it my duty, being one of the few who really knew him (and at the best there are very few who so know any man) to give my most candid evidence in behalf of his moral purpose and high and lofty integrity.

"To a man who has been somewhat in political life, among the great crowd who are influenced by selfish and policy motives, fearful of their very shadows in a defense of principle to a great extent unreliable, it is very refreshing to meet men of Mr. Goebel's high character, brave, truthful and devoted to high principles and purposes. A very eminent lawyer, a kind and indulgent brother, a reverent and obedient son, a plain, simple and pure man in private life, an undaunted and fearless champion of the people, he has died, as he earnestly believed, fighting his battles, a warrior with his harness on, in the strength and vigor of his manhood.

"Where in Kentucky can we find his like again? Who shall take up his cause with the same courage, ability and zeal to protect the rights of the plain people of the State? George Washington was no greater patriot and friend of the common people than was the fearless Wm. Goebel, who has gone to a glorious, though an untimely, death, cut down by the murderous bullet of an assassin.

"His dying words are his legacy to the loyal and true: 'Toll my friends to be brave and fearless and loyal to the great common people.' These words will make his epitaph, emblematic of his great and fearless soul."

MR. TAYLOR

Turned Down at Washington by Unanimous Sentiment.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 4, 1900.—Hon. W. S. Taylor: The unanimous sentiment here is that you are wrong in preventing the Legislature from meeting, and that you should submit the disputed questions to the civil court. Federal assistance can not be given you on your requisition so long as the Legislature is in session or can be convened. There is no doubt but it can be convened if you will permit. The Democrats intend that if any violence occurs, you shall be the aggressor. You will by forcible resistance alienate all who formerly sympathized with you. No assistance. Answer. W. J. Denon.

Charles Spurgeon once said that there were three great enemies of man, "dirt, debt and the devil." He might have added one more and included dyspepsia. The evil results of this disease could hardly be exaggerated. Its effects are felt in mind and body, and are as far reaching as the effects of the curse that was laid on the Jackdaw of Rheims which was cured in eating and drinking and sleeping in "dirt, debt and lying." The good effects of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are most marked in aggravated and chronic cases of dyspepsia. It enables the stomach glands to secrete the necessary quantity of digestive fluids, and this at once removes that craving or unending sensation so common to certain forms of indigestion. It tones and regulates the stomach, invigorates the torpid liver and gives the blood-making glands a keener assimilative power. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures ninety-eight percent of those who use it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are superior to all other laxative medicines when the bowels are obstructed.

Big Suit.

Riddell & Riddell, attorneys of Estill county, have filed with the Ky. Debt and Immigration Company, a corporation with headquarters at Detroit, Mich., in the Estill county court for $73,393 damages claimed by J. S. Crosby, plaintiff. The damages arise from a breach of contract on the part of the defendants with reference to the purchase and sale of lands and timber in Estill and Lee counties—Richmond Register.

"I had dyspepsia for years. No medicine was as effective as Kotol Dyspepsia Cure. It gave immediate relief. No bottles produced marvelous results," writes L. H. Warren, Albany, Wis. It digests what you eat and cannot fail to cure.

TOUCHING TRIBUTE

To Gov. Goebel's Memory By James H. Mulligan.

He never posed nor pretended to be aught more than what he was; never advocated that his conviction did not approve; never compromised with any measure his conscience did not endorse. He was all conviction; he did not know how to straddle, and had none of the petty resources of the politician. It was his honesty—his unwavering fealty to conviction and friend—that made his invincibility.

His first friends are his last friends. He never forgot or violated a promise; never forgot a service, yet made no profuse professions. Some good words of his acquaintance were his most steadfast friends.

He conferred princely benefits on Kentucky. It is needless to enumerate. After so many had failed—men of ability—he put an end forever to the lotteries. The best of the good features of the present Constitution are his; the provision for libraries in cities of the second class came from him. Once enlisted, he never rested. His recreation was in work. He pretended in nothing; never sought to appear especially moral; he was absolutely correct in moral habits; never played a card; never drank liquor beyond an occasional glass of beer when urged, did not smoke and indulged in no profanity.

After his experience and his fate it is unlikely that any really great man will succumb to analogous corporate power in Kentucky. His heart was well-nigh broken in the cruelty of the assault; his blood was poured out on the threshold of the Senate, a sacrifice of the plain people to corporate lust.

"Two Merry Tramps."

Manager N. A. Wilkerson presents to his patrons on next Friday night this big farcical comedy, which has been successfully produced in all the large cities of the country and which by reason of its unique and meritorious construction is of an order that will continue to meet with favor for many seasons to come. An unusually capable company of farceurs and specialists interestingly interpret this laughable comedy in a manner calculated to cause one to forget for the time being that sorrow or care exists and an evening of pure enjoyment and harmless hilarity is promised. The play this season is unusually strong in a musical way, each member being a trained vocalist, and at times during the progress of the play one imagines that it is an operatic production rather than a comedy. Special care has been taken by the management to have the wardrobe and costumes of the finest. A truly up-to-date comedy production is promised.

"I had bronchitis every winter for years and no medicine gave me permanent relief till I began to take One Minute Cough Cure. I know it. I have used cough medicine made," says J. Koonz, Curry, Pa. It quickly cures coughs, colds, croup, asthma, grippe and throat and lung troubles. It is the children's favorite remedy. Cures quickly.

TEXAS

Will Honor Gov. Goebel by Erecting a Monument.

On February 5 a movement was set on foot in the Texas Legislature to erect a monument to the memory of Gov. Goebel. The money will be raised by popular subscription, the Legislature heading the list. The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That it be with profound sorrow this resolution is passed, and in so doing this body esteems it a privilege to commend the virtues of him whose life has been taken in the very fullness of his manhood and in the hour of his triumph. That as a self-governing and law-abiding people, all Texas desiring the happiest conditions existing in our sister state, and join in the hope that the peaceful counsel of her illustrious son and dead Governor may prevail; that it is the sense of this body that patriotism, duty and obedience to law demands of every citizen of this union an unqualified condemnation of assassination and the unlawful use of an irresponsible soldiery in the attempted overthrow of civil government, in denouncing the legal right of the representatives of a people to peacefully assemble in the discharge of their duty, and in a refusal to submit to the mandates of the courts of this country, thus opening the floodgates to revolution and civil strife to the blight of a free people, and the destruction of civil government."

Airaid of Kentucky.

The recent happenings at Frankfort, including the Colson Scott tragedy, the shooting of Goebel and the arbitrary action of Gov. pro tem Taylor have produced in many Northern minds an idea that a man's life is not safe anywhere between the Ohio river and the Tennessee line. A case in point occurred here a few days ago. An attorney of this city who has in his hands a quantity of mountain land not yet appointed the agent of a Northern syndicate who was desirous of investing in Kentucky timber and mineral land. The attorney exacted a check in describing the forested lands and their desirability as an investment, but in the midst of one of his most eloquent passages, he was interrupted by the prospective purchaser asking:

"Say, is there any way I can reach the North side of the Ohio river without going through Frankfort?"

This was no mark for the attorney and the trade fell through at once—Winchester Democrat.

Ben Vivion, of Mercer county, is a breeder of fine chickens and recently sold a rooster to a neighbor. A day or two later the purchaser complained to Vivion that the rooster would not associate with his hens;

"What kind of hens are they?" asked the seller.

"O, just common brown hens," answered the purchaser.

"No wonder," said Vivion; "that rooster is a Goebel rooster, and you needn't expect him to associate with common Brown hens."

HIS DYING WORDS.

"Tell my friends to be brave and fearless and remain loyal to the great common people."
—Gov. Wm. Goebel.

The man or men who conspired to and did take the life of Senator Goebel should, if possible, be detected, tried legally and punished. When such a reward as $100,000 is offered for the conviction of the guilty, great care should be taken that only the guilty be punished.

W. S. Taylor refusing to sign the peace protocol changes matters only thus: He, a deposed Governor pro tem., is still out and has control only of what is termed a "rump" Legislature, and that by their own volition. Taylor has issued a proclamation returning his Legislature from London. It will be in Frankfort what it has been in London—part of a Legislature, without a quorum, or, in other words, nothing at all.

GOEBEL MONUMENT.

On next Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the Court House will be held a public meeting at which time and place resolutions will be adopted pertaining to the life of Gov. Wm. Goebel deceased, and also denunciatory of the dastard crime which caused his death.

The people at this time will also be given an opportunity to show their appreciation of the worth of our lamented dead, by contributing to a monumental fund. All persons interested in these matters are most respectfully invited to be present promptly at the aforesaid place and time.

WHY, CERTAINLY.

An idea found its way into the daily press, which ran about this way: A leading Republican Senator at London said: "Judge Yost came running to the State building and said: 'I saw one man shoot another down there just now. Two men were walking together and one of them took a pistol from his person and holding it in his left hand fired and killed the other, and at once concealed the pistol under his arm and hence the smoke went undiscovered.'"

Well, well, what a story. What a whopper. A fellow would have to be awful quick to cover up the smoke from a discharged pistol by placing the weapon under his arm. The Republican who told this story (name has been withheld) would make the impression that Jack Chinn assassinated Gov. Goebel. Well, this is a reasonable Republican story.

GOVERNOR GOEBEL.

After what has been said over the bier of the late Governor Goebel, any eulogy from our pen would fall flat. It has not been Kentucky or the States alone in sorrow and indignation because of the manner of his taking off, but the heart of the whole civilized world has pulsated in common.

This deep and universal feeling exists because of the greatness of the man, the appreciation of the common people, and the dastardly crime which ended his life. When this great leader lay dying, the world, friend and foe alike, stood in anxious solicitude, and when the inevitable result was made known women and men alike wept; it was a nation in sorrow.

History does not furnish us with an instance that moved the people as did the death of Governor William Goebel. The last look at his home, the wagonloads of rare flowers, the tears, the heartaches, the indignation, the deep smoldering wrath, but served to illustrate universal love and admiration.

Where as a State Senator he labored for twelve years in the interest of the common people, and where under the shade of beautiful evergreens, in company with others of our distinguished dead, the presence of twenty thousand and more people with their love mementoes is unmistakable significance. Loved, honored, appreciated.

Flowers have been strewn, songs have been sung, patriotic and inspiring eulogies have been delivered, the great mind has ceased its thinking, his body crumbles to dust; yet the work begun will never die.

As a representative of the people, as a factor in opposition to trusts and concentrated capital and force, his name will pass to generations way down in the future and the more we know of the man and his objects the more will his name stand out in brightness, the more to be honored.

SITUATION.

W. S. Taylor, who agreed with certain leading and representative Republicans that he would subscribe to what ever adjustment they would make with Democratic representatives regarding our troubles, refused to stand by them and hence all peace negotiations went to pieces. He further determined to send soldiers, galling guns etc., away, but since that scare, some of his own soldier boys gave him, by firing a gun in the neighborhood of the Executive Mansion, he has ordered the return of soldiers and also the guns. Such is the appearance at Frankfort. That Rump Legislature will be there unable to do anything except to meet and adjourn and draw salaries so long as Day, acting Treasurer, has funds.

At Louisville, Gov. Beckham advises the Legislature to remain there and conduct business, so long as the militia be about the State Capital. The Legislature will be protected by the civil authorities from any arrest. Taylor and his crowd may undertake to make. Legislative business will continue with a quorum and if Republicans wish to participate in the workings of a legal Legislature, they will have to join the body in Louisville.

WHAT NEXT?

A prominent Republican, one of the one hundred and twenty five elect, to confer with W. S. Taylor, as to whether he should sign that peace protocol or not, in a conversation, confirmed our opinion regarding Taylor's future action. It was this: If Judge Taft of the federal court decides that court has jurisdiction in the injunction case to be heard, the Republican party will have hope and will contend for the offices; otherwise Taylor and his people would give way to the State Legislature and courts, and yield to the Democrats.

YOU CAN.

You can say this: The members of the Legislature here in Louisville will not be molested by Taylor in any of his child-play. We will not be arrested. Again, you may say: We, the Legislature of Kentucky, will exhaust every known means to bring about a fair and legal adjustment of the Kentucky trouble, and it will be done peaceably. Democrats in many places are becoming restless because of the long continued strain in State affairs, but leaders everywhere are determined that if an armed conflict cannot be avoided it must be precipitated by Republicans. Somehow, we do not fear such extreme measures, believing that our people by reason and experience would shrink from such dire methods and will adjust matters to the satisfaction of both parties.

SOLDIER BOYS

Have Gone Home. A Few Left For Protection.

Orders were issued on Saturday afternoon to Gen. Collier to prepare for the departure of troops from Frankfort. Soon many were ready to leave. All day long on Sunday, special trains carried them away and on Sunday night troops from only Covington, Newport and Georgetown were camped in the Capital grounds.

Gen. Collier said: "They would interfere in no way with the sessions of the members of the Legislative halls who would be as free and untroubled in their movements as it was before Gov. Taylor issued the proclamation declaring Frankfort in a state of insurrection."

A VIGOROUS

CONTEST WILL BE WAGED.

Matter to Be Decided in the Courts.

The following given on Saturday night is explanatory:

"I have only this to say: After mature deliberation and conference with my friends from every section of the state, I have concluded to let this controversy take its due course, vigorously contesting every inch of ground and upholding the rights of the people to the uttermost. If those rights be destroyed, the responsibility for that destruction must rest with those who sit in judgment.

It is due to say that the eminent gentlemen, my friends, who secured the propositions, resulting from the Louisville conference, acted in perfect faith, from the highest motives of patriotism, and did the very best they could."

(Signed) WILLIAM S. TAYLOR, Governor of Kentucky.

The above proclamation, issued by Governor Taylor, Saturday, according to his oral statement at the time of its issuance, embodies all he desired to say concerning his position at the present time.

HEALTH OF TROOPS

In Frankfort is Causing Some Uneasiness.

The health of the assembled troops is causing some uneasiness among the commissioned officers. The rapid changes of the weather has played havoc with some of the green men, and there is an astonishingly large number of sick men in the hospital. For the most part chill, bad colds and sore throats make up the cases, but there are several of a far more serious nature. Many troops left on Sunday.

SEN. BLACKBURN

Talks About The Louisville Peace Protocol.

Protocol.

Where Rests the Blame For Non-Settlement of State Trouble.

Settlement of State Trouble.

Senator Blackburn Sunday made public the agreement signed last Monday by seven Republicans and seven Democrats representing Governor Taylor and Beckham for a settlement of the divided political condition in this state. It was accompanied by a statement covering the whole course of the negotiations, beginning with a call by David W. Fairleigh on Senator Blackburn at Frankfort February 5, to seek a conference looking for a settlement. The Senator says:

"I insisted that before I could undertake so grave and delicate a task, I must be assured of the full and plain powers with which he was authorized to act. Of this he gave me satisfactory assurances. It was then agreed between us after various points had been suggested, that we should meet in Louisville, and he and Hon. John Marshall (who was not present at this interview with me, but was accompanying Mr. Fairleigh, as he told me, in his interview with Mr. Taylor) did not go from Frankfort to Louisville Monday morning."

THE LOUISVILLE MEETING.

Senator Blackburn then tells of the meeting at the Galt House between Messrs. Fairleigh and Marshall and their associates, and Governor Beckham, Senator Blackburn and five other Democrats. He continues: "The agreement, by direction of all the conference, was reduced to writing and put in form by Mr. Fairleigh and myself. It was then submitted to our associates, and as the result of our protracted deliberations it was unanimously agreed to and signed."

On Tuesday morning General D. W. Lindsey, Dr. T. H. Baker, Gov. W. Lindsey and myself went according to agreement, to Frankfort. It was understood and agreed that General Lindsey should see Mr. Taylor, obtain his signature to the copy of the agreement in his possession and exchange the same with me for the copy which I held."

Senator Blackburn then tells of the delay in signing the agreement, adding that Messrs. Lindsey and Fairleigh both called on him meanwhile to express regret at their inability to bring the matter to a close. This continued until Senator Blackburn left Frankfort, he having told Judge Barr and Mr. Fairleigh he would have nothing more to do with the matter.

CALLED UP BY TAYLOR.

The Senator continued: "At an early hour Sunday morning I was awakened by the clerk at my hotel, and told that Governor Taylor wanted me at the long distance telephone, and requested me not to take the time necessary to dress, but to come at once. I went promptly, and Mr. Taylor told me of his great perplexity and distress of mind, expressed his appreciation of the liberal measure of patience I had shown throughout these negotiations; said that he felt that the parties to this conference had found the proper solution to the situation; that he approved of the agreement and found no fault with it, either in whole or part; but he said that the pressure that had been brought to bear upon him in opposition to his approval was beyond anything of which it was possible for me to conceive. He further said that he had summoned certain parties to a conference with him at 10 o'clock this morning, and asked me—earnestly urged me—to consider the matter as opened until 11 o'clock that morning. I agreed to this, and further said that instead of 11 o'clock we would make it 12 o'clock if he wished it, at which latter hour it was agreed that he should call me up by telephone and advise me of his approval of the agreement and of a proclamation that he would issue revoking his call for a meeting of the Legislature at London and calling it to meet at Frankfort on Monday next, and of the sending of the military force now on duty at Frankfort away. I waited until 12 o'clock, and until 1 o'clock, and hearing nothing from him, I wired Mr. Taylor that the hour he had named had passed, and another hour in addition, and that the matter under consideration stood closed."

Senator Blackburn says Governor Taylor called him up soon afterward to explain the delay. He continues: "He told me he could not sign or approve the agreement; that conditions were such and the pressure so heavy that he could not do it."

"With this statement I and my associates are content to leave the public to decide as to where the crushing burden of responsibility rests for a continuance of the deplorable condition that we have labored so earnestly to relieve."

"Should it be that even worse is to come than now exists, we feel that we have done our utmost to protect our people and our State, and that we shall not be answerable."

Republican Legislature at London Called off.

On Saturday afternoon at 1:45 the following proclamation was issued: "Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 10, 1900.—The excitement recently prevailing in this city having to some extent subsided, and there appearing now to be no necessity for the General Assembly to remain in session at London, I do hereby, by this proclamation, reconvene same in Frankfort, Ky., Monday, February 12, 1900, at 12 o'clock noon."

"W. S. TAYLOR, Governor of Kentucky."

In compliance with the above, the Republicans scattered from London, and reported at Frankfort on Monday.

Fatal delays are caused by experimenting with cough and cold cures. Foley's Honey and Tar will prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia.

TIME IS LIFE

The father? Gone for the doctor. The mother? Alone with her suffering child. Will the doctor come? Where there is a croup in the house you can't get the doctor quick enough. It's too dangerous to wait. Don't make such a mistake again; it may cost a life. Always keep on hand a dollar bottle of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

It cures the croup at once. Then when any one in the family comes down with a hard cold or cough a few doses of the Pectoral will cut short the attack at once. A 25 cent bottle will cure a miserable cold; the 50c. size is better for a cold that has been hanging on.

Key the bottle and keep it handy. About 15 years ago I came near dying with croup. I was cured with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, since which time I have kept a bottle in the house and recommended them to all my friends.

Kentuckians Ashamed.

The following is an extract from a letter written by J. H. Swango, at Memphis, Tenn.:

Kentuckians are hanging their heads in shame at the revolutionary state of affairs in the old state. There were a great many anti-Goebel men here two weeks ago, but few, if any, now. Taylor is the laughing stock of everybody.

Accidental Shooting.

On Wednesday night some men were standing on the pavement near the National Hotel. A pistol fell to the pavement and was discharged; the ball entered the right leg of Dr. J. L. Reynolds cutting the artery above ankle. Prompt medical attention stopped the flow of blood. The Dr. will soon be able to leave his room.

Milit Stills Destroyed.

Revenue officers made a raid in Green County, and they destroyed a large still and five or six hundred gallons of beer. The officers were fired upon a number of times, returning the fire. A mother still, with 1,500 gallons of beer, was destroyed.

PEACE AGREEMENT

Which Was Turned Down By

W. B. Taylor.

AN IMPORTANT DOCUMENT.

For the purpose of ending by proper mutual concessions the unfortunate condition of political affairs now existing in Kentucky, a conference was held at Louisville, Monday night Feb. 5th, in which the subscribers participated. After many hours of patient and frank discussion it was unanimously determined to recommend the accommodation of difficulties upon the following basis:

First.—Should a resolution be passed by the General Assembly during its present session in joint session of the two Houses, declaring that the action heretofore taken by the General Assembly did invest Goebel with the title to the office of Governor of this Commonwealth on the second day of February, and did invest Beckham with the title to the office of Lieutenant Governor on said date, the contestees, Taylor and Marshall, shall not dispute said titles respectively.

Second.—That should the General Assembly pass the resolution stated in the foregoing paragraph, immunity shall be extended to all persons from all accusations growing out of political acts done pending the contests for the offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Third.—That all Legislative action by the present General Assembly be postponed until Monday, February 12, except only such steps as may be necessary under the Constitution to make lawful adjournments.

Fourth.—That the Board of State Election Commissioners sitting as a Contest Board, shall postpone all its proceedings until Tuesday, February 13, or until such later date as it may determine, provided it may meantime meet and adjourn if it shall determine that such meetings are necessary or expedient.

Fifth.—That it earnestly be recommended that

Now is the time for poetic expressions about little lambs with fleeces white as cotton, etc.

McCormick Bros., of Spencer, have bought of Frank and Henry Fortune about 75 acres of timber land and are now developing it.

Some of the farmers have done considerable plowing. Mr. E. S. Cunningham, of Thomson, finished the plowing of his corn land about three weeks ago.

James Candie has purchased of J. H. Goff, Jr., 100 acres of woodland, known as the Barefoot tract of land, including the toll-gate house, for $500 equivalent to cash. These parties live at Indian Fields.

There is a shortage of at least twenty per cent in the Barley crop of Kentucky. Manufacturers who are holding back expecting to secure cheap tobacco later on had best think the matter over a little bit, and get their selection of tobacco before too late. The market will certainly go no lower on the present crop, and all indications point to prices getting at least three or four cents higher on the better grades before the next crop comes to market.—The Weed.

You Can't Dodge Them

Did you ever try to dodge the rain-drops? Did not succeed very well, did you? It's just as useless to try to escape from the germs of consumption. You can't do it. They are about us on every hand and we are constantly taking them into our lungs.

Then why don't we all have this disease? Simply because these germs cannot gain a foothold in a strong throat and lungs. It's when these are weak that the germs master. The body must be well supplied with fat. The danger comes when the blood is poor and the body is thin. If your cough does not yield, and your throat and lungs feel raw and sore, you should not delay another day. Take of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites at once. It will heal the inflamed membranes and greatly strengthen them as well. The digestion becomes stronger, the appetite better and the weight increases. The whole body becomes well fortified and the germs of consumption cannot gain a foothold.

It's this nourishing, sustaining and strengthening power of SCOTT'S EMULSION that has made it of such value in all wasting and exhausting diseases.

Sixth.—That the present General Assembly shall provide an absolutely

Seventh.—That as soon as possible from this date the State militia now on duty at the seat of Government shall be withdrawn and sent to their homes, due regard being had for the preservation of the public peace.

Memorial Meeting.

On Monday of last week a mass meeting was held at Paris to offer resolutions concerning the death of Gov. Goebel.

Rev. E. G. B. Mann, of the Methodist church, said in part: "I declined to speak for the party during the heated campaign because I am a minister in a congregation where both political parties are represented, but now that my friend Mr. Goebel is dead, I can speak in memory of his noble traits with perfect propriety. I speak not as a minister, but as a citizen, to my fellow-men. I am reconciled to his death, because it will do more for the principles of right than twenty years more of his life could have accomplished. He has baptized his many principles in his own blood, and his dying message will reunite his party. I am by birth a mass and a Methodist, but by choice a Democrat. The method of Kentucky is not ready yet to defy Force, and I hope and pray for honorable peace."

With fitting military honors the body of Gen. Henry W. Lawton was interred in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, Friday.

Last Week! Last Week!

FOR THE GREAT Mackintosh Sale.

Last week's success in point of sales was wonderful, and this was due to the high grades offered at the extremely low prices. We are here with a tremendous large stock of attractive bargains and in opposition to the crushing trusts.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste of impurities in the blood, if they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pain, backache, rheumatism, come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or untimely heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. K. Miller's Swamp-Root, the greatest kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

Oh! the colors were sadly displayed that day, And it cost a statesman true His blood for the red, while the snow made the white.

And the sky above made the blue. Grief raged wild in many hearts, And many the tears that were shed.

When the cruel message was passed along That our gallant leader was dead. An assassin had dealt a cruel blow And Goebel's blood had flowed;

Heaven tried to weep. But the deed was so cold that it snowed, Oh! the colors were sadly displayed that day, And it cost a statesman true His blood for the red, while the snow made the white.

And the sky above made the blue. The soldiers came and stacked their arms, But the colors were rent apart; For villains had painted the red in the stripes

And the nation abhorred their art. So the beautiful blue floated high above, While the stripes were trampled below. For the stars and the blue field of the flag,

While the stripes were of life blood, Oh! the colors were sadly displayed that day, And it cost a statesman true His blood for the red, while the snow made the white.

And the sky above made the blue. But an unseen Presence that is ever near Stretched forth a magic hand And snatched him back from the jaw of death.

And made him first man of the land. The power of their vengeance could not stay his course!

When a victim he fell to the foe, The hand of Providence bore him on And covered his blood with snow. Oh! the colors were sadly displayed that day,

And it cost a statesman true His blood for the red, while the snow made the white. And the sky above made the blue.

The Father in Heaven who witnessed the plot According to deed will reward; They may have the power to escape the law,

But "vengeance is mine," saith the Lord. The life of brave Goebel may soon flicker out, But this message lives forever—for lo! Whenever we turn our eyes to the flag We'll think of his blood and the snow. Oh! the colors were sadly displayed that day, And it cost a statesman true His blood for the red, while the snow made the white.

And the sky above made the blue. SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN, Steptone, Ky., Feb. 2, 1900.

FACTS AND OBSERVATIONS.

OUR PIKES.

Recently our travels have been on the railroad, so we have seen but little of the pikes in the country.

The heavy rains for a few days have rendered them more disagreeable.

On Thursday the writer had occasion to go to Spencer in a buggy and he could not help but notice the serious defects in the pike's water running across or in the pike, rough places, mud holes, thin rock etc.

Many people will, at the month go by, doubt whether the freeing of the pikes was a wise or economic measure, when comfort and convenience of the travelling public is considered. The road commissioners have an important and probably an unappreciated task before them.

Our time was limited, so interviews were only two, short and to the point, for an important matrimonial engagement must be promptly met.

H. C. Ledford & Son have been in business since Aug., '9th.

The father, H. C., had previously been engaged in the general mercantile business at Spencer for six years, being under different firms associated with J. C. B. Duff & J. T. Coons.

He was born in Harlan county, Ky., in 1852 and has lived in Bath and Montgomery counties for fifteen years.

He married Miss Millie Ann Evans, of Lee county, and they have eight children—five daughters and three sons.

Associated with him in business is his son, Charles E. now 20 years old—still unmarried, a polite enterprising young man, who, we trust, be a success in business, and make happy the life of some young woman.

The firm carries a stock averaging about $4,500 and deal in live and lumber on Red river, in Powell county.

We next dropped into the store of McCormick Bros., shook hands around, distributed copies of the ADVOCATE and proceeded to business.

The firm is composed of Allen and Fred McCormick. The senior member is to all appearances over 33 years old, is a Democrat, is extensively known and is a native of this country. The only office of this firm was from 1894 to 1897. What will come next time will reveal.

He married Miss Belle, the daughter of Peter Greenwade and wife. Their home is between the three children.

The firm began business in March of last year, succeeding the firm Greenwade & Horton. This is the engineer misunderstood the signals and there was a frightful railroad collision, with terrible loss of life. The whole country was agitated by that accident.

There is doubtless a far greater loss of life occurring every day, in various sections of the country, for which the only excuse is, "the doctor didn't understand the symptoms." These cases are not the subjects of special interest or of the country would be agitated at the sacrifice of life to ignorance.

It has been the experience of Dr. R. V. Pierce and his staff of assistant physicians, that ninety-eight out of every hundred persons submitting to their treatment can be cured. People given up by the local physicians, weak, emaciated, with stubborn coughs and bleeding lungs have been absolutely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Sick people are invited to commit Dr. Pierce by letter free. All letters are read and are strictly private and treated as such on confidential. Answers are mailed in plain envelopes without any printing on them.

Last spring I was taken with severe pains in my chest, and was so weak I could hardly walk any distance. I tried several doctors, but was not cured. I then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and was cured. I had then the first bottle I was very much better. I took five bottles of it and have not yet had any return of the trouble.

HAD GOEBEL LIVED

Kentucky's Fame Would Have Been Cleared.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 7.—Mr. D. J. Thomas, a former Kentuckian, now prominently connected with the press of this city, said, in commenting upon the assassination of Gov. Goebel: "Had Goebel lived Kentucky's fair fame would have been cleared of the stain of mountain feuds, law defiance and corporate control. The martyred Governor knew his ground, had at his command the necessary means, and possessed the nerve to use the same. The fight will go on, and Kentucky will be redeemed, but it may be years before such a leader as Goebel appears again. His fight with death ended in his only defeat, and Goebel's memory will forever be an inspiration for ambitious youth and men who would serve their fellows."

BRAVE WOMAN

Admonishes Her Husband Not To Desert His Post at Frankfort.

Frankfort Democrat: Many wives and mothers were husbands and sons to leave Frankfort, but Senator George T. Paris (Dem.), of Lancaster, received the following message from his wife:

"I am worried about you, but I would rather see you brought home in a pine box than for you to desert your post."

Laughing Night.

Manager N. A. Wilkerson announced that Friday, Feb. 10th, will be the big laughing night of the theatrical season of 1900 and 1901, when that jingling comedy, "Two Merry Tramps" will be presented. This play has possibly made more people forget their troubles for an evening and created more genuine laughter than any of the farces comedies which have been seen of late years.

The author claims a plot for the play, but when asked to define it explains to be a plot upon the part of the comedians to convulse the audience with laughter, and while hilarity sometimes proves fatal, it seldom occurs, so the actors are safe in continuing the conspiracy. An unusually large and capable company of comedians, singers, dancers and musicians have been engaged for this seasons production. New songs, musical numbers etc., will be introduced in quick succession during each act, and as the company carry a splendid male quartette, the musical features will be much in evidence, something always enjoyed by all.

Taylor Ignorant.

Happily our State and Federal forms of government are so constituted that it is difficult for a single man, no matter how high his position may be, to wreck one of them in a single term of office; but the recent performances at Frankfort show that had Taylor been permitted to occupy the Governor's office undisturbed for the full term, even in time of profound peace, the State would have been in considerable peril from his incompetence and ignorance.—Enquirer.

HOME CARE FOR BLOOD POISON.

Beware of the Doctors'

Patchwork; You Can

Cure Yourself at Home.

There is not the slightest doubt that the doctors do more harm than good in treating Contagious Blood Poison; many victims of this loathsome disease would be much better off today if they had never allowed themselves to be dosed on mercury and potash, the only remedies which the doctors ever give for blood poison.

The doctors are wholly unable to get rid of this vile poison, and only attempt to heal up the outward appearance of the disease, and endeavor to keep it shut in with their constant doses of potash and mercury. The sores and other delicate parts then break out again, and the fight is continued indefinitely, the drugs doing them more damage than the disease itself.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 106 Liberty St., Newark, N. J., says: "I had spent a hundred dollars with the doctors, when I realized that they could do me no good. I had large spots all over my body, and these soon broke out into running sores, and I endured all the suffering which this vile disease produces. I decided to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and was soon greatly improved. I followed closely your 'Directions for Self-Treatment,' and the large blotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller. My system of private home treatment disappeared entirely. I was soon cured perfectly and my skin has been as clear as glass ever since. I cured myself at home, after the doctors had failed completely."

It is valuable time thrown away to expect the doctors to cure Contagious Blood Poison, for the disease is beyond their skill. Write Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

J. A. RAMSEY, AUC.

LONDON A CENTURY AGO.

Opinion of a Frenchman Who Was There in 1765.

In the year 1765 a Frenchman, who did not give his name, visited London, and afterwards published in Paris an account of his visit. "I reached London," he says, "towards the close of day, and at last, quite exhausted by chance, I found myself settled in an apartment in the house of the Cuisinier Royal, in Leicester Fields; this neighborhood is filled with small houses, which are mostly let to foreigners." On the following day he walked down Holborn and the Strand to St. Paul's, then crossed London bridge, and returned to his hotel by walking through Southwark and Lambeth to Westminster, "a district full of mean houses and mean taverns." The localities named have not greatly altered their character since then. In another place he travels, he says: "Even from the bridges it is impossible to get a view of the river, as the parapets are ten feet high." The reason given for all this is the inclination which the English, and the Londoners especially, have for suicide. It is true that above and below the tower the banks are unprotected, and offer an excellent opportunity to those who really wish to drown themselves, but the distance is great, and besides, those who wish to leave the world in this manner prefer doing so before the eyes of the public. The parapets, however, of the new bridge (Blackfriars), which is being built, will be but of an ordinary height. Suicidal tendencies must, indeed, have greatly declined, since the most recently erected bridges, the new Westminster and Blackfriars, have particularly low parapets.

Of the streets our author says: "They are paved in such a manner that it is barely possible to walk or ride on them in safety, and they are always extremely dirty." The finest streets... would be impassable were it not that on each side... footways are made from four to five feet wide, and for communication from one to the other across the street there are smaller footways elevated above the general surface of the roadway, and formed of large stones, selected for the purpose... In the finest part of the Strand, near St. Clement's church, I noticed, during the whole of my stay in London, that the middle of the street was constantly covered with liquid stinking mud, three or four inches deep. The walkers are bespattered from head to foot... The natives, however, brave all these disagreeables, wrapped up in long blue coats, like dressing gowns, wearing brown stockings and perukes, rough, red and frizzled." Concerning Oxford street, our author makes a false prognosis: "The shops of Oxford street will disappear as the houses are sought after for dwellings by the rich; soon will the great city extend itself to Marylebone, which is not more than a quarter of a league distant. At present it is a village, principally of taverns, inhabited by French refugees. Our traveler sees but four houses in London which will bear comparison with the great hotels in Paris. To the inconvenience of mud, he says, must be added that of fog, which, mingled with a perpetual fog, covers London as a pall—Gentleman's Magazine.

SHE'D USED A 'PHONE BEFORE

A Chicago Woman Who Did Not Need Instruction.

A South side man who broke up housekeeping last spring for the winter has just got settled for the winter in apartments. One day last week the next morning bright and early the bell rang and his wife went to the machine. And this is what he heard: "Hello! Who's that?" "The telephone company! Well, what is it?" "Give me instruction in the use of the instrument! Why—" "Well, if it is a rule that you can't break, of course I'll listen, but I want to tell you something first. I—" "It's just this: My father had the first private residence telephone in Chicago. The company used to call up our house to show off the system to visitors. I used that telephone till I was married, and I've had one of my own ever since. Altogether that's more than 20 years that I've used a telephone in this city. Still, if you can't break your rule, go ahead; I'll listen. I would really like a few hints as to how to get along with some of the operators you employ. They're a mystery—" "All right. Good-by."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

EX-PRESIDENTS ARE SCARCE.

Four Were Living at Three Different Times in This Country.

Two ex-presidents of the United States are living, Cleveland and Harrison.

Before the expiration of John Adams' term, 1801, there was no ex-president living, Washington having died December, 1799.

During Jefferson's administration Adams was the ex-president. Both died on the same day, July 4, 1826. Both were ex-presidents during the administrations of Madison and Monroe and a part of the administration of J. Q. Adams.

When Monroe was president the three ex-presidents were Adams, Jefferson and Madison. J. Q. Adams became president in 1825. At that time Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were living. But before the expiration of J. Q. Adams' term, 1829, only Madison and Monroe were living.

During Jackson's first administration, Madison, Monroe and J. Q. Adams were the living ex-presidents. Before the expiration of Jackson's second administration only J. Q. Adams remained as former president.

When Van Buren was president, J. Q. Adams and Jackson were the living ex-presidents.

During William Henry Harrison's term of one month, J. Q. Adams, Jackson and Van Buren were the living ex-presidents.

John Tyler, as vice president, succeeded Harrison and was in office from 1841 to 1845. The ex-presidents living during his term were J. Q. Adams, Jackson and Van Buren.

While Polk was president, the living ex-presidents were J. Q. Adams, Jackson, Van Buren and Tyler. But before the expiration of Polk's term Van Buren and Tyler only remained.

Taylor's term lasted less than five months. In that time Van Buren, Tyler and Polk were living, although Polk died 24 days before Taylor, thereby leaving Van Buren and Tyler living ex-presidents.

When Fillmore was president, Van Buren and Tyler were still living. With Pierce as president, there were three living ex-presidents, Van Buren, Tyler and Fillmore.

When Buchanan was president, Van Buren, Tyler, Fillmore and Pierce were living.

During Lincoln's term of office, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan were living.

In the administration of Johnson, Buchanan died, leaving Fillmore and Pierce.

During Grant's first term, Fillmore and Johnson were living. Before the expiration of his second term there was no living ex-president.

Grant was the only living ex-president while Hayes was at the white house.

During Garfield's short term Grant and Hayes were living.

In the administration of Arthur, Grant and Hayes were still living. At the time of Arthur's death Hayes was living.

During Cleveland's first term, Grant, Hayes and Arthur were living. Before the expiration of that term only Hayes remained.

With Benjamin Harrison as president, Hayes and Cleveland were living, but before the expiration of Harrison's term, only Cleveland remained as a living ex-president.

In Cleveland's second term there was but one ex-president living, Harrison.

During McKinley's term, the two living ex-presidents are Cleveland and Harrison.

Three times in the history of the country have four ex-presidents been living at the same time. Frequently three; once there was one ex-president living during the incumbency of his predecessor; twice none—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Great German Airship.

A great German airship is being constructed in a dockyard. It is being built on a floating raft, and at present it resembles the skeleton of a huge vessel. It was built of such delicate material as to suggest an enormous bird cage. It is made entirely of aluminum, and the outer skin will be stretched on this framework. Inside a number of large balloons will be placed. A gallery and cars all made of aluminum will be placed underneath; engines are provided to drive the airship. The total lifting capacity of the airship will be about ten tons, which is sufficient for it to carry enough stores and ballast to permit of its remaining in the air for some days; $350,000 has been expended upon this experiment.

MANY THOUSANDS

VIEWED THE DEAD GOVERNOR

Floral Offerings the Finest Ever

Seen in This Country.

On Tuesday and Tuesday night the body of Governor Goebel lay in state at Old Fellows Hall in Covington. It is said that 100,000 people saw the body. There were many floral offerings.

The funeral train reached Frankfort at noon Wednesday. The casket was at once taken to the parlor of the Capital Hotel, where it lay in state for twenty-four hours. It is estimated that more than 20,000 persons looked upon the silent form of the great leader. The continuous rain, at times very heavy, did not keep them away.

The floral offerings by citizens, cities, counties, the Kentucky Senate and other bodies, were the most elaborate, numerous and expensive ever seen in the United States. To be appreciated they should have been seen.

On Thursday the burial took place in the Frankfort Cemetery. The funeral procession was over a mile long, many walking in a drenching rain. The service occurred in the chapel. Rev. W. T. Tibbs, of this city, who was invited by the Goebel family to conduct the services, was prevented from being present on account of feeble health. Prayer was offered by Rev. William Stanley, of the Christian church. Rev. T. M. Arnold, of the Christian church, and Rev. E. G. R. Mann, of the Paris Methodist church, spoke.

A funeral oration by Senator J. C. S. Blackburn was pronounced very fine. We hope to give it next week.

A tribute by J. C. W. Beckham and the benediction by Rev. Low Wallace closed the exercises over the remains of Kentucky's distinguished son.

The motion of the Republicans for an injunction to restrain the Contest Board from deciding the contests for minor State offices was on yesterday heard by Judge Taft, at Cincinnati.

Burglar.

The home of Judge C. R. Brooks, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, was recently entered by a burglar, while Mr. Brooks was asleep who stole a valuable watch and some clothing. The burglar escaped.

Gov. Heber M. Wells, of Utah, has called a special election for April 2, for the election of a Congressman to succeed Brigham H. Roberts, who was recently refused a seat by the National House of Representatives.

IN CHURCH.

Just in front of my pew sits a maiden—A little brown wing on her hat, With its touches of tropical azure, And the sheen of the sun upon that; Through the bloom-colored pane shines a glory

By which the wet shadows are stirred, I sit plus for the spirit and splendor That painted the wing of the bird. The organ rolls down its great anthem; With the sound of a song it is blent; But for long, I am sick for the singing Of but one song, that is spent. The voice of the Curate is gentle: "No sparrows shall fall to the ground"; But the poor broken wing on the bonnet Is mocking the merciful sound.

"I had dyspepsia for years. No medicine was so effective as Kotol Dyspepsia Cure. It gave immediate relief. Two bottles produced marvellous results," writes L. H. Warren, Albany, Wis. It digests what you eat and cannot fail to cure.

Candidate for Congress.

Mr. Amos Davis, of Morgan county, has announced in some papers a candidate for Congress in this district. He seeks the Democratic nomination. He was Sheriff of his county from 1870 to 1874 and for eight years (78-86), was County Judge. He was for many years a farmer and stock trader. The Hazel Green Herald says of him: "Judge Davis is a moral, sober, discreet citizen, with years of experience in politics and business that will stand him well in hand in the present contest, and would make him a safe representative."

Goebel Monument Fund.

Numerous suggestions have been received that the people for whom William Goebel labored and for whom he gave his life, should be permitted to contribute to a fund to be used in the erection of a monument to his memory at Frankfort, Ky. Acting upon these suggestions the undersigned citizens of Kentucky do now offer this opportunity to all those who desire to join in this testimony to the sterling worth, the great intellect, the truth, the honor and the courage of this martyr to the cause of civil liberty and the prosperity and happiness of the whole people, to contribute such sums as they may wish to the perpetuation in marble of that which will live in their hearts—a loving memory of William Goebel.

Every contribution will be acknowledged by the committee to whom it is sent, by a certificate which will be a memento.

Those who feel able to give only small amounts should not hesitate to contribute, as this fund is created for the purpose of affording a loving people an opportunity to participate in a loving offering. An organization of the committee will be formed for carrying out the purpose of the contributors.

The above is a circular distributed over the State. Among the committee designated to receive funds in this section are Judge John E. Cooper, at this city, and Judge D. B. Redwine, of Jackson, Ky. 31 tf
